Re: Libra Max v. Barbara H. Urbach Lissner, Case 1:22-cv-05070

Dear Judge Caproni:

This law firm represents Libra Max, the daughter of the famed artist Peter Max and the plaintiff in the above referenced action (“Libra” or “Plaintiff”). I write pursuant to Your Honor’s Rule 2.C to request a 45-day extension of time, to September 6, 2022, to respond to Defendant Barbara Lissner’s (“Lissner” or “Defendant”) motion to dismiss, filed on July 8, 2022 at ECF Doc. Nos. 13-17.

We seek this extension because the papers filed by Defendant are extensive (they include three declarations and over twenty exhibits); several of our lawyers have vacations planned for July and August, including travel abroad; and based on our communications to date with Defendant’s counsel, it appears that we will be briefing the sealing issue at the same time as we will be briefing the motion to dismiss (see ECF Doc. No. 21).

Under the local rules, Plaintiff’s opposition is currently due on July 22, 2022, and this is Plaintiff’s first request for an extension of time. We have conferred with Defendant’s counsel who has indicated that Defendant does not consent to any extension beyond July 22, 2022.

The reason provided by Defendant’s counsel for refusing consent is as follows: “among other things, the fact that Libra and [Schlam Stone & Dolan LLP] are using the press to attack [Lissner], including an article that was published [on July 13, 2022], with quotes from Libra and Jeff Eilender about our [Lissner’s] ‘abusive guardianship.’ Every day that this complaint does not get dismissed is damaging to [Lissner].” (Quoting from a July 14, 2022 email from Defense counsel to Plaintiff’s counsel.)

Defendant’s argument about press surrounding the Peter Max guardianship is a red herring; it is unrelated to our requested extension. We are seeking a normal courtesy extension, in the middle of summer, and a 45-day extension is not atypical for a complex, dispositive motion in federal court. There is no urgency to Defendant’s motion to dismiss. In fact, Lissner’s state court action against Libra has been pending since December 2021, and has not progressed beyond initial pleadings.

The article that Lissner cites as the reason for opposing Libra's requested extension<sup>1</sup> is by no means the first article about Lissner and her role in Peter's guardianship—there have been dozens of articles, plus television coverage, about Lissner's treatment of Libra's father, which were published well before Libra's filing of her federal complaint.<sup>2</sup> This action is mentioned only once, briefly, in the article Defense counsel refers to. The article discusses the guardianship proceeding as a whole, not this federal action in particular.

The timing of Libra's opposition to Lissner's motion to dismiss this action will have no impact on whether there continues to be press about Peter Max's guardianship and Libra's allegations against Lissner. Moreover, even if this Court were to rule in favor of Lissner on her motion to dismiss, it would do little to salvage her reputation, given the procedural nature of the motion (especially given that many of Lissner's arguments pertain to this court's jurisdiction). Lissner has not indicated that she will withdraw her own action against Libra in state court, and the guardianship proceeding will continue – thus, whatever level of interest the media has in the Peter Max guardianship and Lissner's role in it will remain at the same level regardless of what happens with Lissner's motion to dismiss.

Respectfully submitted,

Jeffrey M. Eilender
